

Dear Professor Shopyan Jepri Kurniawan, Agu Supriyanto

Thank you for your interest in our publications and for choosing us in order to publish your valuable research.

The submitted manuscript has been successfully received.

The research topic of the submitted manuscript is in concordance with the covered disciplines of the selected journal.

Before sending the manuscript for being reviewed, please consider giving a look at our publication procedure:

1. The submission will be independently and blind peer-reviewed. The necessary amount of time depends from an article to another, from a reviewer to another; usually, in around a week, we will be able to provide a preliminary opinion. A preliminary review report indicating the acceptance (with or without major content changes) will be issued.
2. If the submitted manuscript is accepted, an article processing fee (APC) of 85USD is required in order to continue the publishing process. There are no other processing fees; the editing, the DOI, the publication, and the online hosting for the published article are covered by the APC. There are no pages, content, or authors limits of any kind. The processing fee remains the same no matter how many pages, authors, graphic content, etc. the article may have. Also, the status of the submitted manuscript (based on our template or not) does not influence the amount of the processing fee.
3. As modalities of payment, we offer: PayPal, 2checkout, Mollie, Netopia (any international credit\debit card is accepted, no matter the currency of the associated bank account), Apple Pay (from an Apple device, with Mollie), International Bank transfer (SWIFT, worldwide or SEPA, on EU), multicurrency Revolut transfers and Money Gram \ Western Union. Authors from countries that have difficulties in transferring funds abroad are asked to contact us; alternative payments methods (local bank transfers, etc.) are available.
4. After the payment is confirmed, the article will be edited in our publishing format. Based on the preliminary review, further adjustments may be recommended. Always, before publication, the edited article is sent back to the author(s) for last updates.
5. The articles will be published in the current issue of the selected journal.
6. A soft-copy (PDF file) of the article and a certificate of publication (PDF file) are sent to the author(s) after publication. Also, if necessary, an acceptance letter or/and an invoice can be issued.
7. On request, after the issue is closed, hard copies of a section or the entire issue may be printed and shipped.
8. The author(s) retains the copyrights of the published research, accept(s) that his\their published research will be available on-line under a Creative Commons 4.0 License, and irrevocably assign(s) the rights of first publication to the publisher on the selected journal.
9. After the issue is closed, the publication procedure concludes with the activation of the DOI (Digital Object Identifier). An identical copy of the published article is independently hosted on the DOI's server, a hyperlink pointing to the hosted file is available on the article's page. Once activated, the DOI supports versioning and offers visualization, download, and citation counters.

In order to begin the publication process please confirm the acknowledgment of our publishing policies.

Best regards,
Emil C.

Reject in current form, but allow resubmission of a substantially different version, according to my accompanying comments	(25-39)
Reject unconditionally, because the likelihood of a successful revision is remote	(<24)

I. Remarks and Recommendations

A. Preliminary observations

The research work has a good value of conceptual consistency and a very good coverage of the planned topic; also, a good research design and clarity of the objectives. A noticeable literature review section guarantees conceptual consistency and additional argumentation to the research conclusion.

B. Research design, article structure

No recommendations regarding changes of research design and structure.

C. Aesthetic aspects

Some minor aesthetically adjustments (paragraphs, tabs, indents, lists, tables, references) will be operated on the editing phase in accordance with our formatting template.

D. Optional recommendations

Adding a section that clarifies the research status and all the potential conflicts of interest:

- If the research benefited by consultancies, implied aspects as the stock ownership, equity interest, patent/licensing arrangements, etc. a statement like "The present research benefited, implied, contains, made use of...." should be included mentioning all the necessary identification elements.
- If any author has directly received research funding and/or has potential conflicts of interest, a statement like "One or more of the authors () has received funding from...." should be included containing the source and the initials of those authors who received funding in the parentheses.
- If the author(s)'s institution(s) received any sort of funding support a statement like "The institution of the authors has received funding from..." should be included containing all the necessary identifying details.
- If the author(s) received no financial support, please note, "Each author certifies that he or she has no commercial associations (eg, consultancies, stock ownership, equity interest, patent/licensing arrangements, etc) that might pose a conflict of interest in connection with the submitted article."
- If any author have received or may receive any personal payment or in-kind benefit or other professional benefits from a commercial entity (eg, serve as a consultant), a statement like "Each author certifies that he or she has or may receive payments or benefits from a commercial entity related to this work..." should be included.
- If the manuscript has been presented on a conference a statement like, "The present research has been presented on...." should be included, mentioning the conference name, location and period. If the manuscript is part of a published \ unpublished thesis a statement like "The present research is part of..." mentioning the all the identification elements.
- If the manuscript represents a significantly improved, revised, adjusted research or a continuation of a previous research a statement like "The present research is an improved, adjusted or continuation of a..." mentioning the previous research.

Adding any other sections as acknowledgments, statements, mentions meant to identify and eliminate any potential conflicts of interest is highly recommended.

Adding a "About the author(s)" representing short biography section is highly encouraged, identification elements as links to the profiles on the institution websites, educational and research social networks like ResearchGate, Orcid, Academia.edu, etc can be included. The elements will be displayed on the article's page, on the upper right side, under the affiliation field.

All the above mentioned optional recommendations have to be added only if the author(s) consider it their presence appropriate or applicable.

II. Conclusion

The submitted manuscript is unconditionally accepted for publication. Any content adjustments will be communicated and operated only after consulting and considering the author(s)'s decision on regard.
