TITLE AND ABSTRACT

Title: The difficulties of elementary teacher education students' speaking performance: a comprehensive analysis

Abstract: Speaking English plays a fundamental role in personal development of students. However, many students struggle when speaking, which limits their capacity to communicate effectively and self-assuredly in a foreign language. The goal of this study is to investigate the elements influencing these difficulties in students' speaking abilities. To effectively design measures to improve kids' speaking abilities, educators and policymakers must have a thorough understanding of these challenges. This research also offers techniques to improve students' speaking abilities. This research used the qualitative research methodology. The data was gathered through observation, documentation, and interviews. The findings demonstrate that the factors that influence the students' difficulties are anxiety, low self-confidence, limited vocabulary, poor pronunciation, and grammar challenges. The strategies to enhancing the students' speaking performance are building a supportive learning environment, improving vocabulary, using technology, and giving feedback to the students' speaking performance. Thus, students and lecturers can contribute to create the strategies to enhance students' speaking performance.

Reviewer A:

Please state your research contribution at the end of the introduction. The research method you have presented is concise and lacks an in-depth explanation of how the qualitative approach was applied and the specific procedures followed. This brevity can create potential ambiguity regarding the method's execution. Please provide a detailed account of the steps taken to collect and analyze data, including the rationale behind each data collection technique. While you mention the use of observation, interviews, and document study as data collection methods, it is imperative to offer a comprehensive understanding of how these methods were implemented to address concerns about the reliability and validity of the collected data. Furthermore, I recommend using recent references from international journals published within the last five years. Avoid relvina on outdated references

Explanations for the above ratings and other general comments on major issues*:

Please include a broader range of sources and research studies to enhance the validity of the claims in the articles you write. Please place your research contribution at the end of the introduction. The methodology you have presented is brief and lacks a comprehensive elucidation of how the qualitative approach was implemented and the specific procedures followed. This conciseness may lead to potential ambiguity regarding the execution of the methodology. Kindly furnish a detailed narrative of the measures taken for data collection and analysis, elucidating the rationale behind each data collection technique. While you allude to the utilization of observation, interviews, and document analysis as data-gathering methods, it is crucial to provide a thorough comprehension of the application of these techniques to address concerns about the dependability and credibility of the collected data. This conciseness may lead to potential ambiguity regarding the execution of the methodology. Kindly furnish a detailed narrative of the measures taken for data collection and analysis, elucidating the rationale behind each data collection technique. While you allude to the utilization of observation, interviews, and document analysis as data-gathering methods, it is crucial to provide a thorough comprehension of the application of these techniques to address concerns about the dependability and credibility of the collected data. Additionally, I suggest incorporating recent references from international journals published within the past five years. Avoid relying on outdated sources, as they might not reflect the latest advancements in the field. Concerning data triangulation, please expound on its practical application instead of merely defining the term. Describing how this technique was employed in your research is vital to ensure its validity and reliability. Lastly, consider creating a diagram that delineates the steps of your research methodology. This visual aid should be tailored to your specific research case, offering a clear and accessible representation of your research process. All Figures attached to the article must be referenced in the preceding paragraph. The conclusion you have written does not effectively summarize the main findings or insights presented in the article. Please provide a concise summary of the key conclusions and outline your research contributions, ensuring a clear understanding of the implications for future research.

Comments on the minor details of the article*:

Please use Mendeley when writing references, and choose IEEE Style. Ensure that the reference metadata is accurate and complete.

Furthermore, I recommend using recent references from international journals published within the last five years. Avoid relying on outdated references as they may not reflect the latest developments in the field. Regarding data triangulation, please provide a detailed explanation of its practical application rather than merely defining the term. It is essential to describe how this technique was utilized in your research to ensure its validity and reliability. Finally, consider creating a chart that outlines the steps of your research method. This chart should be relevant to your specific research case, offering a visual representation of your research process for clarity and accessibility.

The conclusions lack detail. Your article appears to rely solely on qualitative data, without including quantitative analysis or statistical evidence to support the findings, thus limiting the strength of the conclusions drawn. The suggestions you provide for improving students' speaking skills, such as "building a supportive learning environment" and "using technology," are somewhat vague and lack clear guidance regarding the specific approaches or techniques to be applied. Please make improvements. Please offer more concrete and actionable recommendations for improving speaking skills, including specific methodologies and techniques that can be applied in the learning environment. Additionally, consider discussing the potential long-term implications and applicability of the identified strategies to students' language development and proficiency. Enhance the quality of the references you utilize. Avoid including books in your references. I recommend using references from international journals published within the last five years and consider using Mendeley for managing and formatting your references.
