

BUKTI KORESPONDENSI

ARTIKEL JURNAL NASIONAL TERAKREDITASI SINTA 2

Judul Artikel : Power relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori
Jurnal : Notion Journal of Linguistic, Literature, and Culture, Vol. 6 (1), May 2024, p. 128-136
Doi/Url : <https://doi.org/10.12928/notion.v6i1.10184>
Penulis : Trisanti Apriyani (Indonesia Literature Department, Universitas Ahmad Dahlan, Indonesia)
Nurul Jamillah Bt. Rosly (Kulliyah of Languages and Management, International Islamic University Malaysia, Malaysia)

| No | Perihal | Tanggal |
|----|--|---------------|
| 1 | Bukti Submission Acknowledgment artikel ke Notion Journal of Linguistic, Literature, and Culture | 4 Maret 2024 |
| 2 | Bukti artikel yang disubmit | 4 Maret 2024 |
| 3 | Bukti konfirmasi review dan hasil review artikel | 27 Maret 2024 |
| 4 | Bukti respon kepada dua reviewers dan artikel hasil revisi | 27 Maret 2024 |
| 5 | Bukti konfirmasi artikel ACCEPTED | 6 Mei 2024 |

1. Bukti Submission Acknowledgment artikel ke Notion Journal of Linguistic, Literature, and Culture notion

99+

Mail

[NOTION] Submission Acknowledgement Kotak Masuk x

Chat

Ajar Pradika Ananta Tur <notion@uad.ac.id>
kepada saya

Meet

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia

Assist. Professor Tristanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

Thank you for submitting the manuscript, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori" to NOTION: Journal management system that we are using, you will be able to track its progress through the editorial process by logging in to the journal

Manuscript URL: <http://journal2.uad.ac.id/index.php/notion/authorDashboard/submission/10184>

Username: tapriyani

If you have any questions, please contact me. Thank you for considering this journal as a venue for your work.

Ajar Pradika Ananta Tur

Balas

Teruskan

2. Bukti artikel yang disubmit

Authors' names

Title

Discursive relations in the novel my name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori

Trisanti Apriyani; Nurul Jamillah Bt. Rosly

Indonesia Literature Departement, Universitas Ahmad Dahlan, Indonesia

Corresponding author: trisanti.apriyani@idlitera.uad.ac.id

Citation: 1st Author, 2nd Author, & 3rd Author. (year). Title. Notion: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture Vol x(x), p. xx. DOI: <http://doi.org/xxx>

ARTICLE INFO

Article History:

Received

Accepted

Keywords:

Keywords 1

Keywords 2

Keywords 3

Keywords 4

Keywords 5

ABSTRACT

The abstract must be written in 200-250 words, Futura Bk BT 11 pt, 1 space.

The abstract must consist of:

Problem and purpose (2-3 sentences)

Contribution (1-2 sentences)

Method (2-3 sentences)

Result (4-8 sentences)

Conclusion (1-2 sentences)

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

I. INTRODUCTION (babNOTION)

The relationship between history and Literature is still being discussed between writers and historians (Saxton, 2020: 13; White, 2014: 2). These two things are interrelated and influence each other in various ways. Historians sometimes use literary works as a source of information (Kuntowijoyo, 2006: 127), and writers often use historical events as the background for their creative process (Lukács, 1989; Slotkin, 2005: 224-225). As is known, the object that is worthy of being used as inspiration for the creation of a literary work is society and all the problems that occur, both within oneself and in the environment, including historical events (Nanda & Hayati, 2020: 11). Literature can offer an in-depth and subjective perspective on a historical event. In this case, a historical event that may not be wholly documented can be revived through literary works (Kuntowijoyo, 2004: 17; Stocker, 2019: 68).

Authors' names

Title

As part of the creative process, the author will produce knowledge from a created discourse or discourse. Literary works are less critical than factual texts such as historical writings, news, or scientific articles. Each has a role in determining and directing a discussion. Likewise, Leila S. Chudori, a writer, takes inspiration from historical events, historical figures, political conflicts, and social conflicts to develop storylines and characters in her literary works. Various reading results with philosophical, social, cultural, and political themes also enrich the process of creativity, language creativity, and imaginative power in expressing opinions or views on a phenomenon. It is not surprising that several of his literary works have received awards at both national and international levels. One of his last works in 2023 is Namaku Alam (2023), which depicts several historical events during the New Order period.

Researching literary and non-literary texts will produce knowledge based on discursive formations and interdiscursive relationships. According to Foucault, knowledge is synonymous with power, which arises based on a certain amount of knowledge that gives rise to power. For this reason, Foucault calls power like two sides of a coin, a unity whose emergence demands the presence of another. Foucault (2004: 32) emphasizes the importance of interpreting the relationships between various discourses, such as politics, economics, biology, or psychopathology, to find a system of conceptual formation. These different discourse formations are not a single retrospective unit that refers to one transparent object but are a dispersion or diversity of various objects. Foucault (2004) calls a discursive formation a system of dispersion. When a researcher tries to discover the regularity of discourse by analyzing discursive formations, episteme can be found among various sciences (Foucault, 2004: 191–192). This research examines the discursive relations in the novel Namaku Alam by Leila S. Chudori.

II. METHODOLOGY

This qualitative descriptive research uses data collection techniques in the form of reading techniques, note-taking techniques, and literature study. The data analysis technique was carried out using the data triangulation technique proposed by Miles et al. (2014) in the form of data verification, validation, and conclusion.

III. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The government's efforts to control the political situation during the New Order era by purging the influence of communism in society became the beginning of the narrative in the novel Namaku Alam. This cleansing process was carried out by arresting and imprisoning people accused of having ties to the PKI and communist-based organizations. Many of the accused have fled, and authorities will continue to seek information about the whereabouts of the accused through their families or descendants. During the interrogation process, Ratna Surti Andandari, wife of Hananto Prawiro, had to languish for more than a month in a place in the area of Jalan Budi Kemuliaan and experienced several forms of violence. He had to bring his three children, and one of them, Segara Alam, was still a toddler (Chudori, 2023: 159). The interrogation process of Surti stopped after Hananto came out of his hiding place and was finally shot dead by the authorities (Chudori, 2023: 2).

Authors' names

Title

Many of them did not do anything as accused by the authorities. The character Dimas Suryo was not a member of the PKI, but at the time of the 1965 tragedy, he and his friend Nugroho were assigned to the Nusantara news agency, where they worked to attend a conference in Chile. Because Hananto Prawiro, their boss, had an intimate relationship with PKI members, all workers at the Nusantara News Agency were accused of being PKI sympathizers. This caused Dimas and his friends' passports to be revoked, and they could not return to their homeland.

People accused of the PKI would be imprisoned without going through a trial process, and when they left prison, they would have the title of political prisoner or political prisoner. After being released from detention, political prisoners still have to accept the negative stigma of being traitors to the state. Ironically, this negative stigma does not only apply to political prisoners but also to their descendants. Segara Alam had to accept the stigma of being a traitor to the state as a consequence of him being the son of Hananto, who was shot dead because he was considered a PKI sympathizer (Chudori, 2023: 48). The label of traitor to the state is torture for the descendants of political prisoners like Alam because by applying this label, Alam must be familiar with all forms of discrimination that he must accept.

All forms of discrimination experienced by political prisoners and their descendants were the impact of the implementation of the New Order government program, namely "cleaning out elements of communism from the roots" (Chudori, 2023: 229). For this reason, the New Order government issued a screening policy for political prisoners and their descendants: clean themselves and the environment. This policy was socialized by the government so that all people understood the dangers of the PKI and that its influence should not continue to grow in Indonesia.

This policy of cleaning oneself and a clean environment makes things difficult for Alam and Bimo when they want to register at a new school. They have to answer several questions, one of which is about parental information (Chudori, 2023: 229). Surti, a mother from Segara Alam, does not want her child to be rejected from enrolling in the target school just because he is a descendant of political prisoners. A form of cultural resistance to this policy was to include the names of Aji Suryo and Retno as his parents (Chudori, 2023: 231). Another form of cultural resistance found in the novel is removing Suryo's name after Aji's name to avoid being labeled a traitor to the state and avoid the screening process for cleaning oneself and cleaning the environment (Chudori, 2023: 229).

Authors' names

Title

Efforts to monitor political prisoners and their descendants in the novel Namaku Alam emerge through various narratives about the discriminatory treatment experienced by political prisoners and their descendants. Political prisoners and their descendants are a group that must be watched out for because they are worried that they could spread communism. Throughout their lives until high school, the characters Alam and Bimo had to get used to the stigma of being traitors to the state (Chudori, 2023: 49). Nature's form of resistance to the stigma of traitors to the country is to consider it as fate and a curse that they must accept gracefully. The stigma of traitors to the state created by political prisoners has led to the public's understanding that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who have committed grave sins against the country and must continually be monitored and alerted. Political prisoners and their descendants should, as far as possible, refrain from taking actions that justify their conclusion that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who are guilty of their country. Alam was accused of being the wrong party when Alam hit Denny Perdana in response to Denny's behavior in abusing Bimo. This incident made Kenanga angry because, as a result of Alam's actions, the entire family would suffer the consequences (Chudori, 2023: 149). Instead of apologizing to Denny Perdana, Alam, and Bimo changed schools (Chudori, 2023: 150). Nature's decision is a form of resistance to the discriminatory actions that befell her.

The discourse of irregularities in the implementation of democracy in Indonesia in the novel Namaku Alam is seen in the government's efforts to control reading circulating in society. In 1981, the Attorney General's Office banned some books circulating in the community. These books are considered disturbing because they contain and teach a specific ideology that does not follow the Pancasila ideology (Chudori, 2023: 270). Those who still possess prohibited reading books, let alone distribute them, will face legal consequences. The character Bang Joe is portrayed as a figure who dared to secretly copy and sell prohibited books (Chudori, 2023: 273). Bang Joe's action was a form of resistance to freedom of expression, restricted entirely and monitored during the New Order era.

Restrictions and supervision apply not only to reading books in circulation but also to films shown in cinemas. During the New Order era, a censorship agency set strict rules regarding broadcasts that were suitable for the public to enjoy. Strict policies will hamper the development of films in Indonesia. However, a movie entitled Sang Guru passed censorship. It can be watched by Alam and Bimo in the cinema even though the film tells a lot about corruption and collusion practices (Chudori, 2023: 197).

Authors' names

Title

The practices of corruption, collusion, and nepotism highlighted in the film Sang Guru accurately depict life in the New Order era. A businessman like Arya Pradana can experience various conveniences and privileges because of his closeness to high-ranking officials. For example, in business, he can win a license without a tender (Chudori, 2023: 126). The lifestyle of the children of entrepreneurs also has common characteristics, namely, living a life full of luxury, not caring about the rules, and living as they please (Chudori, 2023: 127). A form of resistance to KKN practices is the attitude of entrepreneurs who always maintain harmonious relations with high-ranking officials. The method used could be to buy luxury goods for high-ranking officials.

The dominance of the New Order government extended to the writing of history. Historical events should only be one version and directed to suit the wishes of the government according to the expression that says that history is controlled by the rulers of their time (Chudori, 2023: 12). The government wants the flow of historical events to be controlled and the New Order government's version of historical discourse can strengthen the New Order government's position (Chudori, 2023: 20). During the New Order era, the writing of Indonesian history was still covered in fog and unfortunately the Indonesian people were not a nation that diligently wrote history (Chudori, 2023: 252). It is said that Alam figures will write history after the G30S based on photographic memory, which is his strength. Alam's actions are a form of cultural resistance to the government's monopoly discourse on history writing.

The ideal educational discourse is found in the image of the free and independent Putra Nusa school, which, during the New Order era, schools were rarely seen (Chudori, 2023: 179). The beautiful image of the school creates a conducive learning atmosphere, and students are free to express themselves so that it can produce meaningful student learning experiences (Chudori, 2023: 180). Apart from implementing the government-required curriculum, this school also directs its students to study intangible knowledge such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history. This act is in line with Kirana Iswata and Yudono Yulianto's goal in establishing the Nusa Putra School, namely to produce individuals who have intelligent and competent character (Chudori, 2023: 178).

A form of resistance to the educational discourse designed by the government is to present an image of a school with graduates who are competent in academic life but are also skilled in debating and dare to express opinions. These skills can be observed in several parts of the story about the learning process of Alam and Bimo at the Putra Nusa school, which involves more reading, dialogue, and discussion activities (Chudori, 2023: 292), for example, regarding the works of great world and Indonesian writers such as Hegel, A.S. Neil, Ben Anderson, Ruth Mc Vey, Harold Crouch, Charles Dickens, Mark Twain, Winston Smith, George Orwell, Chairil Anwar, R.A Kosasih, Toha Mochtar, Soekanto S.A., Djoko Lelono, Pramoedya Anan Toer, Rivai Apin and so on.

Authors' names

Title

IV. CONCLUSION

The preferred spelling of the word "acknowledgment" in America is without an "e" after the "g." Avoid the stilted expression "one of us (R. B. G.) thanks ...". Instead, try "R. B. G. thanks...". Put sponsor acknowledgments in the unnumbered footnote on the first page.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

(Optional) This section is optional. You may use this section to thank, appreciate, or dedicate to persons or organizations that support you in conducting your research.

Authors' names

Title

DECLARATION

(Compulsory to be filled)

Author contribution: The contribution or credit of the author must be stated in this section.

Funding statement: The funding agency should be written in full, followed by the grant number in square brackets and year.

Conflict of interest: The authors must declare no conflict of interest related to the manuscript.

Additional information: No additional information is available for this paper.

REFERENCES

(arranged alphabetically)

3. Bukti konfirmasi review dan hasil review artikel

notion

99+

Mail

[NOTION] Editor Decision Kotak Masuk x

Chat

NOTION Journal <notion@uad.ac.id>
kepada saya

Meet

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia x

Tristanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive rel

Our decision is: Revisions Required

The revision must be resubmitted before 13 April 2024

Reviewer A:

Recommendation: Revisions Required

Do you think the title is appropriate?

PARTIALLY

Does the abstract summarize the article clearly and effectively?

PARTIALLY

How would you propose structuring the manuscript's introduction consisting of research gap and literary review?

99+

Mail

[NOTION] Editor Decision Kotak Masuk x

Chat

NOTION Journal <notion@uad.ac.id>
kepada saya

Meet

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia

Tristanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive rel

Our decision is: Revisions Required

Please resubmit your revised paper before 27 April 2024

Satu lampiran • Dipindai dengan Gmail

Thank you for informing me.

Thank you, I will do that.

Thank you for the feedback.

Authors' names

Title

Discursive relations in the novel my name is Alam by Leila S.

Chudori

Dikomentari [u1]: Please consider the title with more interesting title

Citation: 1st Author, 2nd Author, & 3rd Author. (year). Title. Notion: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture Vol x(x), p. xx. DOI: <http://doi.org/xxx>

ARTICLE INFO

Article History:

Received
Accepted

Keywords:

Keywords 1
Keywords 2
Keywords 3
Keywords 4
Keywords 5

ABSTRACT

The abstract must be written in 200-250 words, Futura Bk BT 11 pt, 1 space.

The abstract must consist of:

Problem and purpose (2-3 sentences)

Contribution (1-2 sentences)

Method (2-3 sentences)

Result (4-8 sentences)

Conclusion (1-2 sentences)

Dikomentari [u2]: Write your abstract
Introduction
Method
Result
conclusion
200-250 words

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

I. INTRODUCTION (babNOTION)

Dikomentari [u3]: Share the research gap of your topic chosen

The relationship between history and Literature is still being discussed between writers and historians (Saxton, 2020: 13; White, 2014: 2). These two things are interrelated and influence each other in various ways. Historians sometimes use literary works as a source of information (Kuntowijoyo, 2006: 127), and writers often use historical events as the background for their creative process (Lukács, 1989; Slotkin, 2005: 224-225). As is known, the object that is worthy of being used as inspiration for the creation of a literary work is society and all the problems that occur, both within oneself and in the environment, including historical events (Nanda & Hayati, 2020: 11). Literature can offer an in-depth and subjective perspective on a historical event. In this case, a historical event that may not be wholly documented can be revived through literary works (Kuntowijoyo, 2004: 17; Stocker, 2019: 68).

As part of the creative process, the author will produce knowledge from a created discourse or discourse. Literary works are less critical than factual texts such as historical writings, news, or scientific articles. Each has a role in determining and directing a discussion. Likewise, Leila S. Chudori, a writer, takes inspiration from historical events, historical figures, political conflicts, and social conflicts to develop storylines and characters in her literary works. Various reading results with philosophical, social, cultural, and political themes also enrich the process of creativity, language creativity, and imaginative power in expressing opinions or views on a phenomenon. It is not surprising that several of his literary works have received awards at both national and international levels. One of his last works in 2023 is Namaku Alam (2023), which depicts several historical events during the New Order period.

Authors' names

Title

Researching literary and non-literary texts will produce knowledge based on discursive formations and interdiscursive relationships. According to Foucault, knowledge is synonymous with power, which arises based on a certain amount of knowledge that gives rise to power. For this reason, Foucault calls power like two sides of a coin, a unity whose emergence demands the presence of another. Foucault (2004: 32) emphasizes the importance of interpreting the relationships between various discourses, such as politics, economics, biology, or psychopathology, to find a system of conceptual formation. These different discourse formations are not a single retrospective unit that refers to one transparent object but are a dispersion or diversity of various objects. Foucault (2004) calls a discursive formation a system of dispersion. When a researcher tries to discover the regularity of discourse by analyzing discursive formations, episteme can be found among various sciences (Foucault, 2004: 191–192). This research examines the discursive relations in the novel Namaku Alam by Leila S. Chudori.

II. METHODOLOGY

This qualitative descriptive research uses data collection techniques in the form of reading techniques, note-taking techniques, and literature study. The data analysis technique was carried out using the data triangulation technique proposed by Miles et al. (2014) in the form of data verification, validation, and conclusion.

III. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The government's efforts to control the political situation during the New Order era by purging the influence of communism in society became the beginning of the narrative in the novel Namaku Alam. This cleansing process was carried out by arresting and imprisoning people accused of having ties to the PKI and communist-based organizations. Many of the accused have fled, and authorities will continue to seek information about the whereabouts of the accused through their families or descendants. During the interrogation process, Ratna Surti Andandari, wife of Hananto Prawiro, had to languish for more than a month in a place in the area of Jalan Budi Kemuliaan and experienced several forms of violence. He had to bring his three children, and one of them, Segara Alam, was still a toddler (Chudori, 2023: 159). The interrogation

Dikomentari [u4]: A comprehensive method must be stated here regarding to the research object and subject, how to collect data, how to analyze the data, limitation (if needed), how to build conclusion

Dikomentari [u5]: No data provided

Please share the data to prove your interpretation

Authors' names

Title

process of Surti stopped after Hananto came out of his hiding place and was finally shot dead by the authorities (Chudori, 2023: 2).

Many of them did not do anything as accused by the authorities. The character Dimas Suryo was not a member of the PKI, but at the time of the 1965 tragedy, he and his friend Nugroho were assigned to the Nusantara news agency, where they worked to attend a conference in Chile. Because Hananto Prawiro, their boss, had an intimate relationship with PKI members, all workers at the Nusantara News Agency were accused of being PKI sympathizers. This caused Dimas and his friends' passports to be revoked, and they could not return to their homeland.

People accused of the PKI would be imprisoned without going through a trial process, and when they left prison, they would have the title of political prisoner or political prisoner. After being released from detention, political prisoners still have to accept the negative stigma of being traitors to the state. Ironically, this negative stigma does not only apply to political prisoners but also to their descendants. Segara Alam had to accept the stigma of being a traitor to the state as a consequence of him being the son of Hananto, who was shot dead because he was considered a PKI sympathizer (Chudori, 2023: 48). The label of traitor to the state is torture for the descendants of political prisoners like Alam because by applying this label, Alam must be familiar with all forms of discrimination that he must accept.

All forms of discrimination experienced by political prisoners and their descendants were the impact of the implementation of the New Order government program, namely "cleaning out elements of communism from the roots" (Chudori, 2023: 229). For this reason, the New Order government issued a screening policy for political prisoners and their descendants: clean themselves and the environment. This policy was socialized by the government so that all people understood the dangers of the PKI and that its influence should not continue to grow in Indonesia.

This policy of cleaning oneself and a clean environment makes things difficult for Alam and Bimo when they want to register at a new school. They have to answer several questions, one of which is about parental information (Chudori, 2023: 229). Surti, a mother from Segara Alam, does not want her child to be rejected from enrolling in the target school just because he is a descendant of political prisoners. A form of cultural resistance to this policy was to include the names of Aji Suryo and Retno as his parents (Chudori, 2023: 231). Another form of cultural resistance found in the novel is removing Suryo's name after Aji's name to avoid being labeled a traitor to the state and avoid the screening process for cleaning oneself and cleaning the environment (Chudori, 2023: 229).

Authors' names

Title

Efforts to monitor political prisoners and their descendants in the novel Namaku Alam emerge through various narratives about the discriminatory treatment experienced by political prisoners and their descendants. Political prisoners and their descendants are a group that must be watched out for because they are worried that they could spread communism. Throughout their lives until high school, the characters Alam and Bimo had to get used to the stigma of being traitors to the state (Chudori, 2023: 49). Nature's form of resistance to the stigma of traitors to the country is to consider it as fate and a curse that they must accept gracefully. The stigma of traitors to the state created by political prisoners has led to the public's understanding that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who have committed grave sins against the country and must continually be monitored and alerted. Political prisoners and their descendants should, as far as possible, refrain from taking actions that justify their conclusion that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who are guilty of their country. Alam was accused of being the wrong party when Alam hit Denny Perdana in response to Denny's behavior in abusing Bimo. This incident made Kenanga angry because, as a result of Alam's actions, the entire family would suffer the consequences (Chudori, 2023: 149). Instead of apologizing to Denny Perdana, Alam, and Bimo changed schools (Chudori, 2023: 150). Nature's decision is a form of resistance to the discriminatory actions that befell her.

The discourse of irregularities in the implementation of democracy in Indonesia in the novel Namaku Alam is seen in the government's efforts to control reading circulating in society. In 1981, the Attorney General's Office banned some books circulating in the community. These books are considered disturbing because they contain and teach a specific ideology that does not follow the Pancasila ideology (Chudori, 2023: 270). Those who still possess prohibited reading books, let alone distribute them, will face legal consequences. The character Bang Joe is portrayed as a figure who dared to secretly copy and sell prohibited books (Chudori, 2023: 273). Bang Joe's action was a form of resistance to freedom of expression, restricted entirely and monitored during the New Order era.

Restrictions and supervision apply not only to reading books in circulation but also to films shown in cinemas. During the New Order era, a censorship agency set strict rules regarding broadcasts that were suitable for the public to enjoy. Strict policies will hamper the development of films in Indonesia. However, a movie entitled Sang Guru passed censorship. It can be watched by Alam and Bimo in the cinema even though the film tells a lot about corruption and collusion practices (Chudori, 2023: 197).

Authors' names

Title

The practices of corruption, collusion, and nepotism highlighted in the film Sang Guru accurately depict life in the New Order era. A businessman like Arya Pradana can experience various conveniences and privileges because of his closeness to high-ranking officials. For example, in business, he can win a license without a tender (Chudori, 2023: 126). The lifestyle of the children of entrepreneurs also has common characteristics, namely, living a life full of luxury, not caring about the rules, and living as they please (Chudori, 2023: 127). A form of resistance to KKN practices is the attitude of entrepreneurs who always maintain harmonious relations with high-ranking officials. The method used could be to buy luxury goods for high-ranking officials.

The dominance of the New Order government extended to the writing of history. Historical events should only be one version and directed to suit the wishes of the government according to the expression that says that history is controlled by the rulers of their time (Chudori, 2023: 12). The government wants the flow of historical events to be controlled and the New Order government's version of historical discourse can strengthen the New Order government's position (Chudori, 2023: 20). During the New Order era, the writing of Indonesian history was still covered in fog and unfortunately the Indonesian people were not a nation that diligently wrote history (Chudori, 2023: 252). It is said that Alam figures will write history after the G30S based on photographic memory, which is his strength. Alam's actions are a form of cultural resistance to the government's monopoly discourse on history writing.

The ideal educational discourse is found in the image of the free and independent Putra Nusa school, which, during the New Order era, schools were rarely seen (Chudori, 2023: 179). The beautiful image of the school creates a conducive learning atmosphere, and students are free to express themselves so that it can produce meaningful student learning experiences (Chudori, 2023: 180). Apart from implementing the government-required curriculum, this school also directs its students to study intangible knowledge such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history. This act is in line with Kirana Iswata and Yudono Yulianto's goal in establishing the Nusa Putra School, namely to produce individuals who have intelligent and competent character (Chudori, 2023: 178).

A form of resistance to the educational discourse designed by the government is to present an image of a school with graduates who are competent in academic life but are also skilled in debating and dare to express opinions. These skills can be observed in several parts of the story about the learning process of Alam and Bimo at the Putra Nusa school, which involves more reading, dialogue, and discussion activities (Chudori, 2023: 292), for example, regarding the works of great world and Indonesian writers such as Hegel, A.S. Neil, Ben Anderson, Ruth Mc Vey, Harold Crouch, Charles Dickens, Mark Twain,

Authors' names

Title

Winston Smith, George Orwell, Chairil Anwar, R.A Kosasih, Toha Mochtar, Soekanto S.A., Djoko Lelono, Pramodya Anan Toer, Rivai Apin and so on.

IV. CONCLUSION

The preferred spelling of the word "acknowledgment" in America is without an "e" after the "g." Avoid the stilted expression "one of us (R. B. G.) thanks ...". Instead, try "R. B. G. thanks...". Put sponsor acknowledgments in the unnumbered footnote on the first page.

Dikomentari [u6]: Revise it

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

(Optional) This section is optional. You may use this section to thank, appreciate, or dedicate to persons or organizations that support you in conducting your research.

Authors' names

Title

DECLARATION

(Compulsory to be filled)

Author contribution: The contribution or credit of the author must be stated in this section.

Funding statement: The funding agency should be written in full, followed by the grant number in square brackets and year.

Conflict of interest: The authors must declare no conflict of interest related to the manuscript.

Additional information: No additional information is available for this paper.

REFERENCES

(arranged alphabetically)

Dikomentari [u7]: Must be complete

Authors' names

Title

Power Relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori

Citation: 1st Author, 2nd Author, & 3rd Author. (year). Title. Notion: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture Vol x(x), p. xx. DOI: <http://doi.org/xxx>

ARTICLE INFO

Article History:

Received
Accepted

Keywords:

Discursive
New Order
Power relations
Resistance

ABSTRACT

Exploring discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. Understanding the discursive formations in literary works is crucial for comprehending the historical and social context in which these works were produced. This research aims to describe the forms and representations of power relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori. This is qualitative descriptive research where the data is interpreted using the genealogical and archaeological analysis methods promoted by Foucault. This method aims to uncover and understand hidden power dynamics in various aspects of human life. The research results prove that the author's statements were spread across various formations and became material for discussion. Two forms of power relations are being discussed; the first is the New Order government's practice of authoritarian power in its various policies, which limits human rights. Second, there is resistance from marginalized groups, namely political prisoners and their families. This form of resistance is an effort by marginalized groups to fight for equality and justice. The New Order government in Indonesia constructed a discourse to create a simulated space to legitimize its power within national memory politics. This simulated world is a blend of reality and fantasy constantly reproduced. As a result, the actual reality becomes obscured, and the symbols created are perceived as reality.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

I. INTRODUCTION

The relationship between history and Literature is still being discussed between writers and historians (Saxton, 2020: 13; White, 2014: 2). These two things are interrelated and influence each other in various ways. Historians sometimes use literary works as a source of information (Kuntowijoyo, 2006: 127), and writers often use historical events as the background for their creative process (Lukács, 1989; Slotkin, 2005: 224-225). As is known, the object that is worthy of being used as inspiration for the creation of a literary work is society and all the problems that occur, both within oneself and in the environment, including historical events (Nanda & Hayati, 2020: 11). Literature can offer an in-depth and subjective perspective on a historical event. In this case, a historical event that may not be wholly documented can be revived through literary works (Kuntowijoyo, 2004: 17; Stocker, 2019: 68).

Authors' names

Title

As part of the creative process, the author will produce knowledge from a created discourse or discourse. Literary works are less critical than factual texts such as historical writings, news, or scientific articles. Each has a role in determining and directing a discourse. Likewise, Leila S. Chudori, a journalist and writer, takes inspiration from historical events, historical figures, and socio-political conflicts. This inspiration is used to develop storylines and characters in his literary works. Apart from that, various reading results with philosophical, social, cultural, and political themes also enrich the process of creativity, language creativity, and imaginative power in expressing opinions or views on a phenomenon. It is not surprising that several of his literary works have received awards at both national and international levels. One of his last works in 2023 is My Name is Alam (2023), which also uses several historical events during the New Order period as its narrative theme. The novel Namaku Alam is worth researching because this literary work presents valuable lessons regarding behavior, morals, and ethics toward fellow humans.

The novel Namaku Alam tells the story of a child political prisoner affected by the G 30 S tragedy. During his life, Segara Alam often received discriminatory treatment from his social environment. For Segara Alam, this discriminatory treatment was unfair because it had nothing to do with what his father did. Even when the G 30 S Segara Alam tragedy had not yet occurred. However, the political situation forced Segara Alam and his family to accept all forms of discriminatory treatment. The novel My Name is Alam presents many discourses on the power of the authoritarian New Order government, including discriminatory practices against political prisoners and their families. It cannot be denied that power played an essential role in forming discourse during the New Order era.

The discourses created by the New Order government were powers disguised, hidden, and veiled so that they seemed invisible. Of course, power, in this case, no longer works through oppression or physical force. The powers exercised by the New Order government were exercised and obeyed voluntarily within a state framework. In the network of power, there is political knowledge that can regulate, direct, and condition a country according to specific goals. According to Foucault (2004: 32), knowledge is synonymous with power, and power arises based on a certain amount of knowledge,

Authors' names

Title

which gives birth to power. For this reason, Foucault (2004) calls power like two sides of a coin, a unity whose emergence demands the presence of another.

According to Foucault, power consists of three parts: state society, powerful-powerless, and marginal dominant. This power operates through five forms: operating in various aspects; arising from distinction, discrimination, and inequality; not in a superstructure position; intentional and covert; and power always produces anti-power. Foucault (2004) emphasized the importance of interpreting the relationships between discourses such as politics and economics, including discourse in literary works (Ayuningtiyas, 2019; Hussen, 2023; Kamariah et al., 2020; Latupeirissa & Tjahyono, 2021; Nasution, 2024). The discourse formations in literary works do not constitute a single retrospective unity but are a dispersion or diversity of various objects. Foucault (2004: 32) calls a discursive formation a system of dispersion. When a researcher tries to find discourse regularity by analyzing discursive formations, episteme can be found (Foucault, 2004: 191-192). This action intends to find a conceptual formation system in literary works.

Various literary works widely explore Foucault's concept of 'Power Relations.' Exploring discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. By examining discursive formations, Hou (2021) can gain a deeper understanding of the historical and social conditions that influence the production and reception of literary texts. Schmidt (2020) argues that understanding the discursive formations in literary works provides valuable insight into the cultural and ideological values of a particular period or society. For this reason, Shkolnikov (2023) understanding discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. According to Jalal (2001) studying discursive formations in literary works also allows for a more nuanced understanding of the relationship between literature and society. Furthermore, understanding the discursive formations in literary works is crucial for comprehending the historical and social context in which these works were produced. This research aims to describe the forms and representations of power relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori.

II. METHODOLOGY

This qualitative descriptive research examines the form and representation of power relations in the novel Namaku Alam. The data used is in the form of sentences and narrative elements that describe the forms and representations of power. Next, the data was interpreted using Foucault's perspective with genealogical and archaeological

Dikomentari [u1]: You need elaborating the methodology

How you collect the data

How you limit (maybe) the data

How you categorize the data

How you conclude the collected data

Authors' names

Title

analysis methods. These two methods investigate various power, knowledge, and subjectivity practices in historical and current contexts. This method makes it possible to understand the relationship between power, knowledge, and subjectivity in social and political dynamics (Foucault, 2004). This method aims to reveal and understand hidden power dynamics in various aspects of human life.

III. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The government's efforts to control the political situation during the New Order era by purging the influence of communism in society became the beginning of the story in the novel My Name is Alam. This cleansing process was carried out by arresting and imprisoning people who had ties to the PKI and communist-based organizations. Many of the accused have fled, and authorities continue to seek information about the accused's whereabouts through their families or descendants. During the interrogation process, Ratna Surti Andandari, wife of Hananto Prawiro, had to languish for more than a month in a place in the area of Jalan Budi Kemuliaan and experienced several forms of violence. He had to bring a third child, and one of them, Segara Alam, was still a toddler (Chudori, 2023: 159). The interrogation process of Surti stopped after Hananto came out of his hiding place and was finally shot dead by the authorities (Chudori, 2023: 2).

People accused of the PKI would be imprisoned without going through a trial process, and when they left prison, they would have the title of political prisoner or political prisoner. After being released from detention, political prisoners still have to accept the negative stigma of being traitors to the state. Ironically, this negative stigma does not only apply to political prisoners but also to their descendants. Segara Alam had to accept the stigma of being a traitor to the state as a consequence of him being the son of Hananto, who was shot dead because he was considered a PKI (Indonesian Communist Party) sympathizer (Chudori, 2023: 48). The label of a traitor to the state is torture for the descendants of political prisoners like Alam because by attaching this label Alam must be familiar with all forms of discrimination that he must accept.

All forms of discrimination experienced by political prisoners and their descendants were the impact of the implementation of the New Order government program, namely "cleaning out elements of communism from the roots" (Chudori, 2023: 229). For this reason, the New Order government issued a screening policy for political prisoners and their descendants: clean themselves and the environment. This policy was socialized by the government so that all people understood the dangers of the PKI and that its influence should not continue to grow in Indonesia.

This policy of cleaning oneself and having a clean environment makes things difficult for Alam and Bimo when they want to register at a new school. They have to answer several questions, one of which is about parental information (Chudori, 2023: 229). Surti, a mother from Segara Alam, does not want her child to be rejected from enrolling in the target school just because he is a descendant of political prisoners. A form of cultural resistance to this policy was to include the names of Aji Suryo and Retno as his parents (Chudori, 2023: 231). Another form of cultural resistance in the novel is removing Suryo's name after Aji's name to avoid being labeled a traitor to the state and avoiding the screening process to clean oneself and the environment (Chudori, 2023: 229).

Authors' names

Title

Efforts to monitor political prisoners and their descendants in the novel My Name is Alam emerge through various narratives about the discriminatory treatment experienced by political prisoners and their descendants. Political prisoners and their descendants are a group that must be watched out for because they are worried that they could spread communism. Throughout their lives until high school, the characters Alam and Bimo had to get used to the stigma of being traitors to the state (Chudori, 2023: 49). Alam forms of resistance to the stigma of traitors to the country is to consider it as fate and a curse that they must accept gracefully. The stigma of traitors to the state created by political prisoners has led to the public's understanding that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who have committed grave sins against the country and must constantly be monitored and alerted. Political prisoners and their descendants should, as far as possible, refrain from taking actions that justify their conclusion that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who are guilty of their country. Alam was accused of being the wrong party when Alam hit Denny Perdana in response to Denny's behavior in abusing Bimo. This incident made Kenanga angry because, as a result of Alam's actions, the entire family would suffer the consequences (Chudori, 2023: 149). Instead of apologizing to Denny Perdana, Alam and Bimo changed schools (Chudori, 2023: 150). Alam's decision is a form of resistance to the discriminatory actions that befell her. This resistance is an effort to maintain Alam's self-respect and dignity. Alam knows everyone has the same right to be treated fairly and equally, regardless of characteristics or life history.

The discourse of irregularities in the implementation of democracy in Indonesia in the novel My Name is Alam is seen in the government's efforts to control reading circulating in society. In 1981 the Attorney General's Office banned several books from circulating in the community. These books are considered disturbing because they contain and teach a particular ideology that does not follow the Pancasila ideology (Chudori, 2023: 270). Those who still possess prohibited reading books, let alone widely circulated books, will face legal consequences. The character Bang Joe is described as someone who dared to copy books and sold prohibited books secretly (Chudori, 2023: 273). Bang Joe's action was a form of resistance to freedom of expression, which was restricted entirely and limited during the New Order era. Resistance to freedom of expression is triggered by the desire to change circumstances that are considered detrimental to individuals or groups. Freedom of expression is a fundamental right in realizing a healthy democratic climate. Therefore, restrictions on freedom of expression can be a threat and destroy the implementation of democracy.

Authors' names

Title

The practices of corruption, collusion, and nepotism highlighted in the film Sang Guru accurately depict life in the New Order era. In the novel, My Name is Alam, a businessman like Arya Pradana is depicted as one who experiences various conveniences and privileges because of his closeness to high-ranking officials. For example, in business, he can win a license without a tender (Chudori, 2023: 126). The lifestyle of the children of entrepreneurs also has common characteristics, namely, living a life entirely of luxury, not caring about the rules, and living as they please (Chudori, 2023: 127). A form of resistance to corrupt practices is collusion. Moreover, nepotism is the attitude of entrepreneurs who always maintain harmonious relations with high-ranking officials. The method used could be to buy luxury goods from state officials.

During the New Order era, cultural corruption was a phenomenon that was commonly seen but became a significant but disturbing problem. Corruption has become part of a country's culture or endemic. Corruption is embedded in government structures and systems (systemic). Corruption has become rampant in various aspects of economic, social, and political life (widespread). Corruption has even robbed people of their economic, social, and cultural rights. Kurniawan (2022) corruption is a crime that is difficult to find criminals (Crime without Violation) because corruption is in an area that is difficult to penetrate. Corruption is complicated when obtaining proof procedures where the modus operandi is systematic and continuous (Syuraida & Purwaningsih, 2015).

The New Order government's domination extended to the writing of history. Historical events should only be one version and directed to suit the government's wishes according to the expression that says history controls the rulers of its time (Chudori, 2023: 12). The government wants the flow of historical events to be controlled. The New Order government's version of historical discourse can strengthen the New Order government's position (Chudori, 2023: 20). During the New Order era, the writing of Indonesian history was still covered in fog. Unfortunately, the Indonesian people were not a nation that diligently wrote history (Chudori, 2023: 252). It is said that Alam figures will write the history of the aftermath of the G 30 S based on his photographic memory, which is his strength. Alam's actions are a form of cultural resistance to the government's monopoly discourse on history writing.

Authors' names

Title

The ideal educational discourse is found in the image of the Putra Nusa school as free and independent, which, during the New Order era, such schools were rarely found (Chudori, 2023: 179). The beautiful image of the school creates a conducive learning atmosphere, and students are free to express themselves, which can produce meaningful student learning experiences (Chudori, 2023: 180). Apart from implementing the government-required curriculum, this school also directs its students to study intangible knowledge such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history. This is in line with Kirana Iswata and Yudono Yulianto's goal in establishing the Nusa Putra School, namely to produce individuals who have intelligent and competent character (Chudori, 2023: 178).

A form of resistance to the educational discourse designed by the government is to present an image of a school with graduates who are competent in academic life but are also skilled in debating and dare to express opinions. This can be observed in several parts of the story about the learning process of Alam and Bimo at the Putra Nusa school, which involves more reading, dialogue, and discussion activities (Chudori, 2023: 292), for example, regarding the works of great world and Indonesian writers such as Hegel, A.S. Neil, Ben Anderson, Ruth Mc Vey, Harold Crouch, Charles Dickens, Mark Twain, Winston Smith, George Orwell, Chairil Anwar, R.A Kosasih, Toha Mochtar, Soekanto S.A., Djoko Lelono, Pramoedya Anan Toer, Rivai Apin and so on. Students who study intangible sciences such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history provide valuable knowledge and help students develop various skills and understanding necessary for real life.

IV. CONCLUSION

In the novel, My Name is Alam, the author's statements spread into various formations to become a discussion. Two forms of power relations form a discourse: the New Order government's authoritarian power practices and the resistance of marginalized groups, namely political prisoners and their families. The discursive formations built by the New Order government in the context of the Indonesian nation's memory politics aimed to form a simulacrum space that legitimized its power. The simulacrum world constructed by the New Order government is a world that combines reality and fantasy to be duplicated over and over again. Of course, the actual reality becomes blurred, and the symbols created are believed to be reality.

Dikomentari [u2]: No need the page number

Check the others and Revise them

Dikomentari [u3]: You write this title of novel inconsistently some is italicized but the other is not

Be consistent

Authors' names

Title

DECLARATION

(Compulsory to be filled)

Author contribution: The contribution or credit of the author must be stated in this section.

Funding statement: The funding agency should be written in full, followed by the grant number in square brackets and year.

Conflict of interest: The authors must declare no conflict of interest related to the manuscript.

Additional information: No additional information is available for this paper.

REFERENCES

- Ayuningtiyas, R. (2019). Relasi kuasa dalam novel anak rantau karya Ahmad Fuadi: kajian teori Michel Foucault. Sarasvati, 1(1), 73–86. <https://journal.uwks.ac.id/index.php/sarasvati/article/view/657>
- Chudori, L. S. (2023). Namaku Alam. KPG (Kepustakaan Populer Gramedia).
- Foucault, M. (2004). Archaeology of knowledge. Routledge.
- Hou, L. (2021). Foucault's power discourse and Morrison's The Beloved. International Journal of Social Science and Education Research, 4(3), 241–245. https://doi.org/10.6918/IJOSSER.202103_4\(3\).0035.0035)
- Hussen, M. (2023). Relasi kekuasaan masyarakat Aceh dalam novel Tanah Surga Merah karya Arafat Nur: Studi kekuasaan Michel Foucault. Syntax Idea, 5(10), 1368–1385. <https://doi.org/10.46799/syntax>
- Jalal, M. (2001). Praktik diskursif the theory of truth michel foucault dalam konstruksi simbolisasi bahasa di Indonesia. Masyarakat, Kebudayaan, Dan Politik. <http://journal.unair.ac.id/filerPDF/Praktik%20Diskursif.pdf>
- Kamariah, Tjahjono, T., & Supratno, H. (2020). Women and the Powers of Novel May by Sandi Firly of Michel Foucault Study. LingLit Journal Scientific Journal for Linguistics and Literature, 1(1), 25–32. <https://doi.org/10.33258/linglit.vii.348>
- Kuntowijoyo. (2004). Sejarah / sastra. Humaniora, 16(1), 17–26. <https://doi.org/10.22146/jh.803>
- Kuntowijoyo. (2006). Budaya dan Masyarakat. Tiara Wacana.
- Kurniawan, R. (2022). Dinamika pemberantasan korupsi di Indonesia dalam perspektif sejarah politik: komparasi Undang-undang di masa Orde Baru dan masa Reformasi. Historiography; Journal of Indonesian History and Education, 2(1), 82–92.

Authors' names

Title

- Latupeirissa, E., & Tjahyono, T. (2021). Relasi kekuasaan, pengetahuan, dan moral tokoh Bujang dalam novel Pulang karya Tere Liye (Kajian relasi kuasa Michel Foucault). <https://doi.org/10.32682/sastranesia.v%vi%i.2195>
- Lukács, G. (1989). The historical novel. The Merlin Press Ltd. <https://doi.org/10.1017/CCOL9780521862523.005>
- Nanda, E. S., & Hayati, Y. (2020). Struktur dan nilai sosial dalam dongeng Cinderella dan cerita Putri Arabella: kajian sastra bandingan. Jurnal LINGUA SUSASTRA, 1(1), 1–19. <http://linguasusastra.ppj.unp.ac.id/index.php/LS/article/view/2/2>
- Nasution, S. Y. (2024). Relasi kuasa dalam novel Rindu Kubawa Pulang karya S. Baya analisis wacana kritis Michel Foucault. Jurnal Agama, Sosial, Dan Budaya, 3(1), 196–216. <https://publisherqu.com/index.php/AI-Furqan>
- Saxton, L. (2020). A true story: defining accuracy and authenticity in historical fiction. Rethinking History, 24(2), 127–144. <https://doi.org/10.1080/13642529.2020.1727189>
- Schmidt, H. (2020). Dubravka Ugrešić's Baba Yaga Laid an Egg, as a Female Critique of the Pan-Slavic Spa Novel. Russian Literature, 116, 67–97. <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.ruslit.2020.09.004>
- Shkolnikov, V. (2023). On Tolstooy and Foucault: intellectuals, conscience, and the entanglements of bio-power. Russian Literature, 141, 13–34. <https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0304347923000108>
- Slotkin, R. (2005). Fiction for the purposes of history. Rethinking History, 9(2–3), 221–236. <https://doi.org/10.1080/13642520500149152>
- Stocker, B. D. (2019). Historical fiction: Towards a definition. Journal of Historical Fictions, 2(1), 56–83. https://www.researchgate.net/publication/345438175_Historical_Fiction_Towards_A_Definition
- Syuraida, H., & Purwaningsih, S. M. (2015). Perkembangan pemberantasan korupsi di Indonesia era Orde Lama hingga era reformasi. AVATARA: E Journal Pendidikan Sejarah, 3(2), 230–238.
- White, H. (2014). The history fiction divide. Holocaust Studies, 20(1–2), 17–34. <https://doi.org/10.1080/17504902.2014.11435381>

4. Bukti respon kepada dua reviewers dan artikel hasil revisi

Response to the Two Reviewers of Notion Journal of Linguistic, Literature, and Culture

Reviewer A

Recommendation: Revisions Required

1. Do you think the title is appropriate?

PARTIALLY

Response : Thank you for the review. I will fix the title.

2. Does the abstract summarize the article clearly and effectively?

PARTIALLY

Response : Thank you for the review. I will fix and complete the abstract.

3. How would you propose structuring the manuscript's introduction consisting of research gap and literary review? the introduction is arranged systematically but the research gap does not appear as the novelty of the research. Author must state it clearly.

Response : Thank you for the review. I will improve the introduction so that it is arranged regularly and the research gap appears as the novelty of this research.

4. What does the methodology the author(s) propose match the proposed manuscript? A comprehensive method must be stated here regarding to the research object and subject, how to collect data, how to analyze the data, limitation (if needed), how to build conclusion

Response : Thank you for the review. I will add a description of the comprehensive method regarding the object and subject of research, how to collect data, how to analyze data, limitations of the data used and how to build conclusions.

5. How do you recommend that the result and discussion be entirely complete in their analysis and contribute a new viewpoint to the subject of work? No data provided. Please share the data to prove your interpretation

Response : Thank you for the review and I will fix it.

6. What are your thoughts on the manuscript's conclusion and the prospect of future investigations as stated in the manuscript? No conclusion provided

Response : Thank you for the review and I will fix it.

Authors' names

Title

Power Relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori

Citation: 1st Author, 2nd Author, & 3rd Author. (year). Title. Notion: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture Vol x(x), p. xx. DOI: <http://doi.org/xxx>

ARTICLE INFO

Article History:

Received

Accepted

Keywords:

Discursive

New Order

Power relations

Resistance

ABSTRACT

Exploring discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. Understanding the discursive formations in literary works is crucial for comprehending the historical and social context in which these works were produced. This research aims to describe the forms and representations of power relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori. This is qualitative descriptive research where the data is interpreted using the genealogical and archaeological analysis methods promoted by Foucault. This method aims to uncover and understand hidden power dynamics in various aspects of human life. The research results prove that the author's statements were spread across various formations and became material for discussion. Two forms of power relations are being discussed; the first is the New Order government's practice of authoritarian power in its various policies, which limits human rights. Second, there is resistance from marginalized groups, namely political prisoners and their families. This form of resistance is an effort by marginalized groups to fight for equality and justice. The New Order government in Indonesia constructed a discourse to create a simulated space to legitimize its power within national memory politics. This simulated world is a blend of reality and fantasy constantly reproduced. As a result, the actual reality becomes obscured, and the symbols created are perceived as reality.

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

I. INTRODUCTION

The relationship between history and Literature is still being discussed between writers and historians (Saxton, 2020; White, 2014). These two things are interrelated and influence each other in various ways. Historians sometimes use literary works as a source of information (Kuntowijoyo, 2006), and writers often use historical events as the background for their creative process (Lukács, 1989; Slotkin, 2005). As is known, the object that is worthy of being used as inspiration for the creation of a literary work is society and all the problems that occur, both within oneself and in the environment, including historical events (Nanda & Hayati, 2020). Literature can offer an in-depth and subjective perspective on a historical event. In this case, a historical event that may not be wholly documented can be revived through literary works (Kuntowijoyo, 2004; Stocker, 2019).

Authors' names

Title

As part of the creative process, the author will produce knowledge from a created discourse or discourse. Literary works are less critical than factual texts such as historical writings, news, or scientific articles. Each has a role in determining and directing a discourse. Likewise, Leila S. Chudori, a journalist and writer, takes inspiration from historical events, historical figures, and socio-political conflicts. This inspiration is used to develop storylines and characters in his literary works. Apart from that, various reading results with philosophical, social, cultural, and political themes also enrich the process of creativity, language creativity, and imaginative power in expressing opinions or views on a phenomenon. It is not surprising that several of his literary works have received awards at both national and international levels. One of his last works in 2023 is My Name is Alam (2023), which also uses several historical events during the New Order period as its narrative theme. The novel Namaku Alam is worth researching because this literary work presents valuable lessons regarding behavior, morals, and ethics toward fellow humans.

The novel Namaku Alam tells the story of a child political prisoner affected by the G 30 S tragedy. During his life, Segara Alam often received discriminatory treatment from his social environment. For Segara Alam, this discriminatory treatment was unfair because it had nothing to do with what his father did. Even when the G 30 S Segara Alam tragedy had not yet occurred. However, the political situation forced Segara Alam and his family to accept all forms of discriminatory treatment. The novel My Name is Alam presents many discourses on the power of the authoritarian New Order government, including discriminatory practices against political prisoners and their families. It cannot be denied that power played an essential role in forming discourse during the New Order era.

The discourses created by the New Order government were powers disguised, hidden, and veiled so that they seemed invisible. Of course, power, in this case, no longer works through oppression or physical force. The powers exercised by the New Order government were exercised and obeyed voluntarily within a state framework. In the network of power, there is political knowledge that can regulate, direct, and condition a country according to specific goals. According to Foucault (2004: 32), knowledge is synonymous with power, and power arises based on a certain amount of knowledge,

Authors' names

Title

which gives birth to power. For this reason, Foucault (2004) calls power like two sides of a coin, a unity whose emergence demands the presence of another.

According to Foucault, power consists of three parts: state society, powerful-powerless, and marginal dominant. This power operates through five forms: operating in various aspects; arising from distinction, discrimination, and inequality; not in a superstructure position; intentional and covert; and power always produces anti-power. Foucault (2004) emphasized the importance of interpreting the relationships between discourses such as politics and economics, including discourse in literary works (Ayuningtiyas, 2019; Hussien, 2023; Kamariah et al., 2020; Latupeirissa & Tjahyono, 2021; Nasution, 2024). The discourse formations in literary works do not constitute a single retrospective unity but are a dispersion or diversity of various objects. Foucault (2004) calls a discursive formation a system of dispersion. When a researcher tries to find discourse regularity by analyzing discursive formations, episteme can be found (Foucault, 2004). This action intends to find a conceptual formation system in literary works.

Various literary works widely explore Foucault's concept of 'Power Relations.' Exploring discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. By examining discursive formations, Hou (2021) can gain a deeper understanding of the historical and social conditions that influence the production and reception of literary texts. Schmidt (2020) argues that understanding the discursive formations in literary works provides valuable insight into the cultural and ideological values of a particular period or society. For this reason, Shkolnikov (2023) understanding discursive formations in literary works allows researchers to analyze how language and discourse shape meaning, power dynamics, and cultural ideologies within a specific literary context. According to Jalal (2001) studying discursive formations in literary works also allows for a more nuanced understanding of the relationship between literature and society. Furthermore, understanding the discursive formations in literary works is crucial for comprehending the historical and social context in which these works were produced. This research aims to describe the forms and representations of power relations in the novel My Name is Alam by Leila S. Chudori.

II. METHODOLOGY

This qualitative descriptive research examines the form and representation of power relations in the novel Namaku Alam. The data used is in the form of sentences and narrative elements that describe the forms and representations of power. The data is explained through the categorization, tabulation, and inference stages. Next, the data was interpreted using genealogical and archaeological analysis methods as formulated by Foucault. This second method investigates various power, knowledge, and subjectivity practices in historical and contemporary contexts. This method makes it possible to understand the relationship between power, knowledge, and subjectivity in social and political dynamics (Foucault, 2004). This method aims to uncover and understand hidden power dynamics in various aspects of human life. The validity of the data in this study uses semantic validity and interrater reliability.

Authors' names

Title

III. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The government's efforts to control the political situation during the New Order era by purging the influence of communism in society became the beginning of the story in the novel My Name is Alam. This cleansing process was carried out by arresting and imprisoning people who had ties to the PKI and communist-based organizations. Many of the accused have fled, and authorities continue to seek information about the accused's whereabouts through their families or descendants. During the interrogation process, Ratna Surti Andandari, wife of Hananto Prawiro, had to languish for more than a month in a place in the area of Jalan Budi Kemuliaan and experienced several forms of violence. He had to bring a third child, and one of them, Segara Alam, was still a toddler (Chudori, 2023: 159). The interrogation process of Surti stopped after Hananto came out of his hiding place and was finally shot dead by the authorities (Chudori, 2023).

People accused of the PKI would be imprisoned without going through a trial process, and when they left prison, they would have the title of political prisoner or political prisoner. After being released from detention, political prisoners still have to accept the negative stigma of being traitors to the state. Ironically, this negative stigma does not only apply to political prisoners but also to their descendants. Segara Alam had to accept the stigma of being a traitor to the state as a consequence of him being the son of Hananto, who was shot dead because he was considered a PKI (Indonesian Communist Party) sympathizer (Chudori, 2023). The label of a traitor to the state is torture for the descendants of political prisoners like Alam because by attaching this label Alam must be familiar with all forms of discrimination that he must accept.

All forms of discrimination experienced by political prisoners and their descendants were the impact of the implementation of the New Order government program, namely "cleaning out elements of communism from the roots" (Chudori, 2023). For this reason, the New Order government issued a screening policy for political prisoners and their descendants: clean themselves and the environment. This policy was socialized by the government so that all people understood the dangers of the PKI and that its influence should not continue to grow in Indonesia.

Authors' names

Title

This policy of "Bersih diri dan Bersih lingkungan" makes things difficult for Alam and Bimo when they want to register at a new school. They have to answer several questions, one of which is about parental information (Chudori, 2023). Surti, a mother from Segara Alam, does not want her child to be rejected from enrolling in the target school just because he is a descendant of political prisoners. Surti, Segara Alam and other families of political prisoners are representatives of marginalized groups. A form of cultural resistance to this policy was carried out by naming Aji Suryo and Retno as parents (Chudori, 2023). Another form of cultural resistance in the novel is removing Suryo's name after Aji's name to avoid being labeled a traitor to the state and avoiding the screening process to clean oneself and the environment (Chudori, 2023). This shows that the policy of "Bersih diri dan Bersih lingkungan" is very detrimental to marginalized groups, so they decide to give up all the attributes that show that they are a family of political prisoners.

Efforts to monitor political prisoners and their descendants in the novel My Name is Alam emerge through various narratives about the discriminatory treatment experienced by political prisoners and their descendants. Political prisoners and their descendants are a group that must be watched out for because they are worried that they could spread communism. Throughout their lives until high school, the characters Alam and Bimo had to get used to the stigma of being traitors to the state (Chudori, 2023). Alam forms of resistance to the stigma of traitors to the country is to consider it as fate and a curse that they must accept gracefully. The stigma of traitors to the state created by political prisoners has led to the public's understanding that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who have committed grave sins against the country and must constantly be monitored and alerted. Political prisoners and their descendants should, as far as possible, refrain from taking actions that justify their conclusion that political prisoners and their descendants are a group of people who are guilty of their country. Alam was accused of being the wrong party when Alam hit Denny Perdana in response to Denny's behavior in abusing Bimo. This incident made Kenanga angry because, as a result of Alam's actions, the entire family would suffer the consequences. Instead of apologizing to Denny Perdana, Alam and Bimo changed schools (Chudori, 2023). Alam's decision is a form of resistance to the discriminatory actions that befell her. This resistance is an effort to maintain Alam's self-respect and dignity. Alam knows everyone has the same right to be treated fairly and equally, regardless of characteristics or life history.

Authors' names

Title

The discourse of irregularities in the implementation of democracy in Indonesia in the novel My Name is Alam is seen in the government's efforts to control reading circulating in society. In 1981 the Attorney General's Office banned several books from circulating in the community. These books are considered disturbing because they contain and teach a particular ideology that does not follow the Pancasila ideology (Chudori, 2023). Those who still possess prohibited reading books, let alone widely circulated books, will face legal consequences. The character Bang Joe is described as someone who dared to copy books and sold prohibited books secretly (Chudori, 2023). Bang Joe's action was a form of resistance to freedom of expression, which was restricted entirely and limited during the New Order era. Resistance to freedom of expression is triggered by the desire to change circumstances that are considered detrimental to individuals or groups. Freedom of expression is a fundamental right in realizing a healthy democratic climate. Therefore, restrictions on freedom of expression can be a threat and destroy the implementation of democracy.

The practices of corruption, collusion, and nepotism highlighted in the film Sang Guru accurately depict life in the New Order era. In the novel, My Name is Alam, a businessman like Arya Pradana is depicted as one who experiences various conveniences and privileges because of his closeness to high-ranking officials. For example, in business, he can win a license without a tender (Chudori, 2023). The lifestyle of the children of entrepreneurs also has common characteristics, namely, living a life entirely of luxury, not caring about the rules, and living as they please (Chudori, 2023). A form of resistance to corrupt practices is collusion. Moreover, nepotism is the attitude of entrepreneurs who always maintain harmonious relations with high-ranking officials. The method used could be to buy luxury goods from state officials.

During the New Order era, cultural corruption was a phenomenon that was commonly seen but became a significant but disturbing problem. Corruption has become part of a country's culture or endemic. Corruption is embedded in government structures and systems (systemic). Corruption has become rampant in various aspects of economic, social, and political life (widespread). Corruption has even robbed people of their economic, social, and cultural rights. Kurniawan (2022) corruption is a crime that is difficult to find criminals (Crime without Violation) because corruption is in an area that is difficult to penetrate. Corruption is complicated when obtaining proof procedures where the modus operandi is systematic and continuous (Syuraida & Purwaningsih, 2015).

The New Order government's domination extended to the writing of history. Historical events should only be one version and directed to suit the government's wishes according to the expression that says history controls the rulers of its time (Chudori,

Authors' names

Title

2023). The government wants the flow of historical events to be controlled. The New Order government's version of historical discourse can strengthen the New Order government's position. History must be able to protect and support the interests of the New Order government. During the New Order era, the writing of Indonesian history was still covered in fog. The written history must be based on the government's version, meaning that the government's wishes must be to write history and not write down mistakes or bad things done by the government. Unfortunately, the Indonesian people were not a nation that diligently wrote history (Chudori, 2023). It is said that Alam figures will write the history of the aftermath of the G 30 S based on his photographic memory, which is his strength. Alam's actions are a form of cultural resistance to the government's monopoly discourse on history writing.

The ideal educational discourse is found in the image of the Putra Nusa school as free and independent, which, during the New Order era, such schools were rarely found (Chudori, 2023). During the New Order, schools were generally designed as educational institutions with limited space and students sitting in structured chairs. In the novel Namaku Alam, the school is described as having a beautiful school image that creates a comfortable learning atmosphere, and students are free to express themselves so that it can produce meaningful student learning experiences (Chudori, 2023). Apart from implementing the government-required curriculum, this school also directs its students to study intangible sciences such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history. It is in line with Kirana Iswata and Yudono Yulianto's goal of establishing the Nusa Putra School to produce intelligent and competent individuals.

A form of resistance to the educational discourse designed by the government is to present an image of a school with graduates who are competent in academic life but are also skilled in debating and dare to express opinions. It can be observed in several parts of the story about the learning process of Alam and Bimo at the Putra Nusa school, which involves more reading, dialogue, and discussion activities (Chudori, 2023), for example, regarding the works of great World and Indonesian writers such as Hegel, A.S. Neil, Ben Anderson, Ruth Mc Vey, Harold Crouch, Charles Dickens, Mark Twain, Winston Smith, George Orwell, Chairil Anwar, R.A Kosasih, Toha Mochtar, Soekanto S.A., Djoko Lelono, Pramoedya Anan Toer, Rivai Apin and so on. Students who study intangible sciences such as literature, philosophy, anthropology, and history provide valuable knowledge and help students develop various skills and understanding necessary for real life. It helps students prepare themselves to face the challenges and situations they face after graduating. When students can connect what they learn to real situations, they will continue learning and growing.

Authors' names

Title

IV. CONCLUSION

In the novel, My Name is Alam, the author's statements spread into various formations to become a discussion. Two forms of power relations form a discourse: the New Order government's authoritarian power practices and the resistance of marginalized groups, namely political prisoners and their families. The discursive formations built by the New Order government in the context of the Indonesian nation's memory politics aimed to form a simulacrum space that legitimized its power. The simulacrum world constructed by the New Order government is a world that combines reality and fantasy to be duplicated over and over again. Of course, the actual reality becomes blurred, and the symbols created are believed to be reality.

DECLARATION

(Compulsory to be filled)

Author contribution: The contribution or credit of the author must be stated in this section.

Funding statement:

Conflict of interest: no conflict of interest related to the manuscript.

Additional information: No additional information is available for this paper.

REFERENCES

- Ayuningtiyas, R. (2019). Relasi kuasa dalam novel anak rantau karya Ahmad Fuadi: kajian teori Michel Foucault. Sarasvati, 1(1), 73–86.
<https://journal.uwks.ac.id/index.php/sarasvati/article/view/657>
- Chudori, L. S. (2023). Namaku Alam. KPG (Kepustakaan Populer Gramedia).
- Foucault, M. (2004). Archaeology of knowledge. Routledge.
- Hou, L. (2021). Foucault's power discourse and Morrison's The Beloved. International Journal of Social Science and Education Research, 4(3), 241–245.
https://doi.org/10.6918/IJOSSER.202103_4\(3\).0035.0035)
- Hussen, M. (2023). Relasi kekuasaan masyarakat Aceh dalam novel Tanah Surga Merah karya Arafat Nur: Studi kekuasaan Michel Foucault. Syntax Idea, 5(10), 1368–1385.
<https://doi.org/10.46799/syntax>
- Jalal, M. (2001). Praktik diskursif the theory of truth michel foucault dalam konstruksi simbolisasi bahasa di Indonesia. Masyarakat, Kebudayaan, Dan Politik.
<http://journal.unair.ac.id/filerPDF/Praktik%20Diskursif.pdf>

Authors' names

Title

- Kamariah, Tjahjono, T., & Supratno, H. (2020). Women and the Powers of Novel May by Sandi Firly of Michel Foucault Study. LingLit Journal Scientific Journal for Linguistics and Literature, 1(1), 25–32. <https://doi.org/10.33258/linglit.vii1.348>
- Kuntowijoyo. (2004). Sejarah / sastra. Humaniora, 16(1), 17–26. <https://doi.org/10.22146/jh.803>
- Kuntowijoyo. (2006). Budaya dan Masyarakat. Tiara Wacana.
- Kurniawan, R. (2022). Dinamika pemberantasan korupsi di Indonesia dalam perspektif sejarah politik: komparasi Undang-undang di masa Orde Baru dan masa Reformasi. Historiography; Journal of Indonesian History and Education, 2(1), 82–92.
- Latupeirissa, E., & Tjahyono, T. (2021). Relasi kekuasaan, pengetahuan, dan moral tokoh Bujang dalam novel Pulang karya Tere Liye (Kajian relasi kuasa Michel Foucault). <https://doi.org/10.32682/sastranesia.v%vi%i.2195>
- Lukács, G. (1989). The historical novel. The Merlin Press Ltd. <https://doi.org/10.1017/CCOL9780521862523.005>
- Nanda, E. S., & Hayati, Y. (2020). Struktur dan nilai sosial dalam dongeng Cinderella dan cerita Putri Arabella: Kajian Sastra Bandingan. Jurnal LINGUA SUSASTRA, 1(1), 1–19. <http://linguasusastra.ppj.unp.ac.id/index.php/LS/article/view/2/2>
- Nasution, S. Y. (2024). Relasi kuasa dalam novel Rindu Kubawa Pulang karya S. Baya analisis wacana kritis Michel Foucault. Jurnal Agama, Sosial, Dan Budaya, 3(1), 196–216. <https://publisherqu.com/index.php/AI-Furqan>
- Saxton, L. (2020). A true story: defining accuracy and authenticity in historical fiction. Rethinking History, 24(2), 127–144. <https://doi.org/10.1080/13642529.2020.1727189>
- Schmidt, H. (2020). Dubravka Ugrešić's Baba Yaga Laid an Egg, as a Female Critique of the Pan-Slavic Spa Novel. Russian Literature, 116, 67–97. <https://doi.org/10.1016/j.ruslit.2020.09.004>
- Shkolnikov, V. (2023). On Tolstoy and Foucault: intellectuals, conscience, and the entanglements of bio-power. Russian Literature, 141, 13–34. <https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0304347923000108>
- Slotkin, R. (2005). Fiction for the purposes of history. Rethinking History, 9(2–3), 221–236. <https://doi.org/10.1080/13642520500149152>
- Stocker, B. D. (2019). Historical fiction : Towards a definition. Journal of Historical Fictions, 2(1), 56–83. https://www.researchgate.net/publication/345438175_Historical_Fiction_Towards_A_Definition

Authors' names

Title

Syuraida, H., & Purwaningsih, S. M. (2015). Perkembangan pemberantasan korupsi di Indonesia era Orde Lama hingga era reformasi. AVATARA: E Journal Pendidikan Sejarah, 3(2), 230–238.

White, H. (2014). The history fiction divide. Holocaust Studies, 20(1–2), 17–34.
<https://doi.org/10.1080/17504902.2014.11435381>

5. Bukti konfirmasi artikel ACCEPTED

99+

Mail

[NOTION] Editor Decision Kotak Masuk x

Chat

NOTION Journal <notion@uad.ac.id> kepada saya

Sen, 6 Mei 2024, 11:42

Meet

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia x

Tristanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori".

Our decision is to: Accept Submission

NOTION Journal <notion@uad.ac.id> kepada saya

Sen, 6 Mei 2024, 11:42

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia x

Tristanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

The editing of your submission, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori," is complete. We are now sending it to production.

Submission URL: <http://journal2.uad.ac.id/index.php/notion/authorDashboard/submission/10184>

Notifications

[NOTION] Editor Decision

2024-05-06 04:42 AM

Trisanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION:
Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori".

Our decision is to: Accept Submission

Gmail

notion

99+

Mail

[NOTION] New notification from NOTION: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, & Culture

Chat

NOTION Journal <notion@uad.ac.id>

kepada saya

Meet

Terjemahkan ke Indonesia

You have a new notification from NOTION: Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture:

An issue has been published.

Link: <http://journal2.uad.ac.id/index.php/notion/issue/current>

Ajar Pradika Ananta Tur

Balas

Teruskan

Notifications

[NOTION] Editor Decision

2024-05-06 04:42 AM

Trisanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION:
Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori".

Our decision is to: Accept Submission

Notifications

[NOTION] Editor Decision

2024-05-06 04:42 AM

Trisanti Apriyani | SINTA ID : 6709671:

We have reached a decision regarding your submission to NOTION:
Journal of Linguistics, Literature, and Culture, "Discursive relations in the novel my name is nature by Leila S. chudori".

Our decision is to: Accept Submission